

Extracurriculars

Loyola students are encouraged to find whatever it is that ignites their passion. This passion energizes students to achieve not only at Loyola but long after they graduate. We want our students to be transformational leaders. This is achieved through versatile extracurricular activities and events. Our extracurriculars enable students to broaden their skills and compassion in order to change the world.

In selecting activities, students are reminded that their primary responsibility is academic success, and they should not consider participating in activities that will interfere with that primary responsibility. One or two activities per term are usually more than enough. Clubs and sports teams are normally scheduled to meet after school or during lunch. In the case of some extramural sports, practices are also scheduled on weekends. Students must find out from the moderator, or coach, what kind of commitment they are asked to make. Once a student has joined a club or team, the student is expected to meet their commitment.
