

The President's Christmas Message

As I write this Christmas reflection, Remembrance Day has just been observed and the darkness of a cold November is upon me. In one way, it is difficult to imagine an idyllic Christmas in the midst of dark and dreary November days, but imagining it does help one live through these gloomy days more easily. Most of us have long passed the days where our Christmas ideals are based on the materialism of the perfect gift. Instead, we imagine the perfect setting in which all of our loved-ones might gather.

This year, I tried to get my brothers and my sister to rent a massive cottage with me, so that we could all be together to celebrate the holidays. I imagined all of the cousins playing together in the snow, and then coming in to a warm fire and hot chocolate. I pictured a "monumental" hockey game on the frozen pond. I envisioned everyone laughing and telling stories, and celebrating the awesome feast of the Incarnation. What a Christmas it would be!

I found myself frustrated by the seeming lack of good-will on the part of my relatives, as some of them could not, or would not, oblige my ideal because they had to work over part of the holidays, or because other relatives were involved, or because they could not justify the expense of the rental. How could they not put these other things aside in order to provide me with my ideal!? People make our lives difficult, especially when they do not act and think in the way we imagine they should. It is ironic that my ideals seem to be about people. But really, are they?

An annual tradition at Loyola, the Christmas Toy Drive provides gifts for children at St. Gabriel's Parish in Pointe-Saint-Charles.

May the grace of God's love touch all of us this Christmas, so that we may reflect that grace to all who share their lives with us.

One of my most memorable Christmases was my father's last. We were all together for Christmas dinner, but my Dad was not feeling well so he stayed in bed. I remember feeling annoyed with him because he was spoiling the ideal Christmas dinner. To make matters worse, my Mom was concerned and asked us to help my Dad shower. What kind of Christmas event was this? People were not behaving according to my "ideal". The next day, my father was taken to the hospital; that was the last Christmas he spent at home.

I can say that the almost-comical scene of my two brothers and me trying to get our Dad into the shower is one of the fondest memories I have. His vulnerability allowed us to share a precious moment of real, human contact. His weakness and humility – not the ideals I had ascribed to my Dad – provided us with the opportunity to express our love for him. As imperfect, clumsy and comical as it was, it allowed us to say, "I love you Dad," in a simple and powerful way.

Christmas is God's great expression of His love for us. In our November darkness, in the midst of our imperfections and weaknesses, God comes to be with us, "to pitch His tent among us." His coming to us does not wait for our perfection. He meets us in all our faults and shows us how much we are loved.

May the grace of God's love touch all of us this Christmas, so that we may reflect that grace to all who share their lives with us.

Principal's Corner

I grew up on the outskirts of town, with a great evergreen forest near our house. Each December, our parents would send my sisters and me to the woods to bring back, before dark, the best Christmas tree we could find. While we looked forward to the search every year, it wasn't easy. You had to tramp through the snow pretty far, hopeful, but not sure, of finding a decent tree. You might encounter a moose, or get lost if you weren't careful.

In many ways, our annual search for a tree reminds me of the Advent season. In both, there is a going into the wilderness – in one, into the natural wild, and in the other, into the wilds of our hearts. In the woods, we are trying to find a balanced and strong evergreen that can last through the cold winter. In Advent, we seek a prayerful and reverent posture to receive the Lord on Christmas, to improve on our failures and imperfections, to recall and to share the good that God has planted in each of us. Searching our hearts during Advent can be a quiet, but challenging, process; like searching for a Christmas tree in a cold and darkening forest.

In both cases, we know on one level that the end result will be a good one, but another part of us is also aching for that good outcome. As much as we know Christmas will eventually come, we still ache for it to arrive, for the relief and joy in the arrival of Jesus, God's incredible gift of His only Son.

When we got the tree back home to our parents, no matter which one we chose, what awaited us was a warm house and a family celebration. No one pointed out any of the tree's flaws, even if it was a "Charlie Brown" tree. In the same way, when Jesus arrives at Christmas time, our hearts are lit up with joy because God gives His love abundantly, regardless of whether we feel we deserve it, whether we feel spiritually "ready" or not.

What I wish for us is an Advent where we can have time for quiet preparation – for a good and prayerful look inside ourselves, asking God to ready our hearts to receive the spirit of Jesus on Christmas. And I hope that we can share the love that God has given us with our loved ones, in the same warm spirit of peace and joy that I felt when we got back from the woods with our tree, those many years ago. A prayerful Advent and a merry Christmas to all!

2017-18 Annual Giving Campaign

As we begin anew our Annual Giving Campaign, may we count on your financial support to assure that Loyola will not merely endure, but will grow, flourish and continue to provide an exceptional academic, extra-curricular and spiritual formation to future generations of young men?

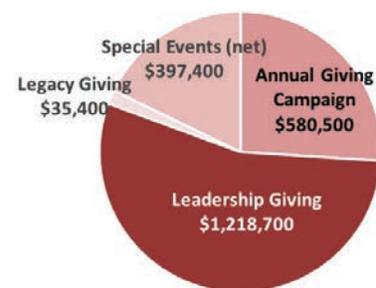

Your commitment and generosity will help us fund some of the following important projects:

- ➔ The expansion of the Guidance Department to serve as a testing and learning resource centre for students who require extra help;
- ➔ The renovation and refurbishment of classrooms to allow for more collaborative learning, team teaching, flexible seating, and technology integration;
- ➔ The financial aid program to attract qualified students, regardless of their ability to pay tuition.

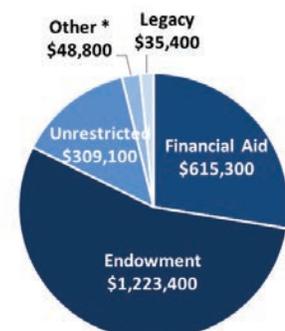

Donations can be made online at loyola.ca or mailed in with the pledge card included in our appeal letter mailed out in November.

Homecoming Weekend

The Loyola High School Alumni Association hosted its 21st annual “Beer, Oyster and Smoked Meat” evening, on Friday, Oct. 6th. As in the past, those grad years celebrating reunions (this year, classes ending in 2 and 7) were strongly encouraged to attend this incredible evening, filled with laughter, storytelling and camaraderie. As the evening wore on, the reunion years that had assembled to reflect on their youth, and to revel in the successes of their former classmates, solidified plans to gather during the weekend. Hockey games, outings in the city, dinners with spouses and lots of laughter were on various to-do lists.

Alumni from the special reunion years were not the only ones who enjoyed the evening. “Old” boys from the 40s through to the 2000s, were all well-represented. More than 500 Loyola Boys enjoyed a pint with a few of their buddies and former teachers.

Kudos to the class of '67 which celebrated its 50th reunion. The group, including several long-distance travellers, truly made the most of their weekend! The festivities included: a pub night at PJs; a round of golf for some and boat cruise for others; a dinner in the Old Port on Saturday night with 30 classmates and spouses in attendance; and a small memorial for deceased classmates.

Other classes with impressive turnouts included the class of '77, which had thirty-five classmates rock the Casey Lounge during the evening.

CLASS OF '97

The “band”, led by Norm Emblem, played 70s’ rock music well into the night. The class of '07 was represented by more than forty alumni and they found different ways to “rock” their old stomping grounds. It was great to see so many familiar, smiling faces enjoying the evening.

Once again, the LHSAA was fortunate to have so many alumni donate the gifts and prizes that were used for the live and silent auctions. The “Beer, Oyster and Smoked Meat” evening is the main fundraiser for the Alumni Association, and all the money raised at the event goes towards endowing bursaries and helping out with charitable events.

A heartfelt thanks to Adamo Coletti and Riccardo Bozzo, both '06, the Canadian distributors of Caffè Tubino. Once again, these baristas extraordinaire served up many cups of delicious espresso. All donations from the Caffè Tubino booth went to the Bursary fund.

Many thanks to Pierre Shousha '78, outgoing President of the Alumni Board, to the Alumni & Development Associate, Connie Di Iorio, and to the many members of the Board. Without their dedication and hard work, this evening would not have been possible.

Any opportunity to renew friendships, to enjoy a feeling of community, and to celebrate the amazing connection with so many great guys, is something to cherish. Until next year!!

Celebrating our Jesuit heritage at the Jesuit Martyrs' Mass

Industrial Arts

Four years ago, Industrial Arts was launched as a senior “option” course. The Introduction to Technology course (ITT), once taught by Naz Ruscito, was abolished by the government several years ago, and the school recognized that Industrial Arts could fill that gap and provide valuable learning opportunities for students to work with their hands and explore different mechanical, technical and design skills.

Initiated and taught by Mr. Michael Elie '97, Industrial Arts provides secondary-five students with an introduction to the use of shop equipment and building techniques. Topics in the course include: basic drafting (drawing of diagrams), shop safety, and construction using various materials, from wood to metal and plastic. Industrial Arts also introduces some basic electrical concepts and rudimentary automotive maintenance, from changing car tires, to jump-starting a car whose battery is dead. Over the past four years, projects have included the building of locker shelving, stick racks for our hockey teams, and several picnic tables. These projects have helped students keep their sports equipment organized and enhanced their outdoor space.

Although the basement of the school housed the original workshop for the ITT course, it is now home to our successful Robotics' program. Industrial Arts students work with basic hand tools and power tools in the science lab on the second floor.

Mr. Elie is always looking for help, suggestions for projects, and donations of tools as well as materials. If you would like to get in touch, please email him at elie@loyola.ca.

Looking ahead: Loyola's future and Ignite

Loyola is part of an international network of Jesuit schools working toward a shared vision that extends globally to 845 institutions. As partners in the mission of Jesuit education, we build bridges around the globe to exchange information and resources, to reflect, and to discuss best practices and new initiatives. Our shared vision informs and challenges the kind of teaching and learning pursued, the caring relationships experienced both in and out of the classroom, and the values that permeate our school.

In the spring of 2016, having heard of a network of Jesuit schools that was revolutionizing high school education, a small group of Loyola faculty travelled to Barcelona, Spain. What they witnessed was impressive. They found students working collaboratively on real-world problems. They found local community members, businesses and parents, actively engaged in the learning process of students. They found teachers combining their classes to teach cross-curricular concepts simultaneously. They found walls that could open, chairs and desks on wheels, students standing or in motion, carpets on floors, touchscreens and whiteboards throughout. Most important, they found students actively engaged in, and motivated by, the learning process. Encouragingly, student grades and the depth of learning have increased at these schools.

In the Ignatian spirit, this experience spurred a period of reflection and discussion at Loyola. Could our students benefit from a thorough rethinking of our pedagogical practices? If so, what would our program look like? To answer these questions, Ignite was created.

Could our students benefit from a thorough rethinking of our pedagogical practices? If so, what would our program look like? To answer these questions, Ignite was created.

Ignite is a committee of about thirty teachers, administrators and staff, whose goal is to ensure that Loyola remains forward-thinking, while staying true to its mission to form men of conscience, competence, and compassionate commitment.

Inspired by books written about the process in Barcelona, sub-committees were launched to evaluate learning spaces as well as to research best pedagogical practices.

Thanks to the Loyola High School Foundation, four of the classrooms on the third floor (two examples shown here) were renovated, and new, flexible furniture was provided for use in these rooms. A series of pilot projects that puts educational research into action has been launched. As the program is being explored and built, data is collected and analyzed at each step. The school is excited about sharing its plans and, in the coming months, will be asking the wider Loyola community for its input. Please stay tuned!

Wrestling at Loyola

In 1969, when this ancient sport was first introduced at Loyola, interest was minimal. In 1978 a wrestling room was built in the Loyola gym and participation in the sport slowly increased. In 1995 wrestling was added to the roster of sports at the Winter Sports Tournament (re-named the Ed Meagher Sports Tournament in 1996). Since then interest and ability in the sport has grown, culminating in 2017 with Loyola winning the GMAA Wrestling Championship.

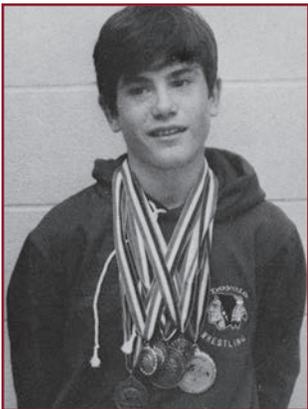

Loyola High School News January 21, 1969

1969 Wrestling Team

According to the coach Mr. Jim Newman, the wrestling team is more of a club than anything else. The primary reason for this is that not enough students have gone out for the sport. There are only five or six regulars, and to make a decent team for competition, fifteen participants are needed. Thus the members of the “club” are learning about the sport without being groomed for competition.

1987 Wrestling Team

Craig Montour - GMAA Gold Medalist

The 1987 wrestling team competed in eleven dual meets as a member of the GMAAA, and a number of tournaments including the Beaconsfield “takedown”, the Omnium de Quebec, the Riverdale Open, and the Scarborough International Invitational.

Most of the members of this year’s team were novices, as far as wrestling is concerned, and the year might be considered as being a rebuilding year. As the season progressed, the talents of the wrestlers began to come to the surface and as a result, a good number of medals were won at the GMAA final (including a Gold for Craig Montour) and at the Provincial Championships, held this year at Massey Vanier in Cowansville. With the excellent coaching of Mike Sullivan, the only thing missing to make Loyola a championship team is wrestlers. Once again, the wrestling team had difficulty recruiting members, and without a larger number of wrestlers, Loyola was unable to field a team with a wrestler in each weight class. Perhaps next year!!

2016-17 Wrestling Champs

The 2016-17 Loyola wrestling team won the GMAA city championship on February 16, 2017 at Kahnawake Survival School. The Warriors completed their first ever perfect season and repeated as GMAA champions. Loyola took home a total of 22 medals, 7 of them gold, in one of the most remarkable wrestling performances in recent years.

Coach Bruno Cyr commented, "When you have quality kids you have a chance. Beyond that, it comes down to everyone doing their jobs as best they can, being accountable for what they bring to the table". "Our captains were Patrick Greiss and William Matthews, and they were fantastic. Both of them were five year veterans of the wrestling team, so their leadership was very natural. They only had to lead by example and got instant respect from their coaches and teammates."

'48 Al McKinney, “made a left turn due to a faulty traffic directional sign on “Dorchester” Blvd and ended up in Pemberton, BC, north of Whistler”. He liked it so much that he decided to stay!

'49 Henry Mizgala recently retired and is enjoying life in Vancouver.

'50 Joseph Lavazelli is enjoying his retirement playing golf, snooker and going to the gym. He is a life member of the YMCA-Benito Rossi Social Club in Kirkland, QC.

'57 Michel (Mike) R. Beaudoin and his wife Ann (nee Treleven) recently moved back to Tillsonburg, ON from London, ON.

'66 Mike Robertson's ninth book, a novel entitled "The Hidden History of Jack Quinn", was recently released. It is available from the publisher, Authorhouse, Chapters, Indigo and a number of other online book stores.

'67 Dr. Peter Senikas recently retired as a dentist and former director of a group of dental clinics (35 dental chairs in six different cities in southern France). He still lives in Prades le Lez, just north of Montpellier, in France. Unfortunately, he was not able to make it to his 50th reunion but sends his best regards to all!

'79 Larry Gillis decided that after 25 years of teaching (warping?) young minds, it was time for a change. He is now playing blackjack full-time... and getting paid for it! He tells us that, after all these years, he is putting what “Shag” taught him about probability to good use.

'82 Glen Choma is delighted to share the news of his marriage in May to Natalie Groves (QAA '93) at Saint Edmund of Canterbury Church in Beaconsfield. In attendance from Loyola were Nick Van Haeften '77, and Natalie's brothers, Tim '84 and Mike '88, and Natalie's sister Pam (QAA '90). Glen sends his best regards to his classmates from the Class of '82.

'87 Tim Ruddy is seen here with Chris Rusnak '91 – both firefighters - after returning from a large fire in Ottawa's South End earlier this year. The alums battled a blaze together late in the evening and only during cleanup did they realize how much they had in common. Both agreed more Loyola grads are welcome to join them with the Ottawa Fire Department.

'96 Jason Bowes married Christine Duffy on March 25, 2017 in St. Petersburg, Florida. More than 40 Montrealers were in attendance to celebrate! Following their wedding, Jason and Christine took a honeymoon to Costa Rica.

'01 Terrel Joseph was named the first-ever Parish Vitality Consultant by Pillars Trust to support priests and parishioners in their ongoing efforts at pastoral renewal. Terrel's hiring was the result of feedback received from local clergy over the last year, identifying tangible actions Pillars Trust could support to reconnect with the clergy and parishioners of the 34 English-language parishes across the Archdiocese of Montreal.

'04 Robert Payne was hired in May 2017 to join the coaching staff of the Edmonton Eskimos, as the quality-control coach. Working 16- to 18- hour days earning his stripes, Robert keeps a positive attitude, “I’m paid by knowledge, by experience and by having the CFL on my resumé (...) It’s a position a lot of coaches have gone through to get to where they want to be”.

'04 Gregory Sorella Van der Sluys married Cynthia Taffari (QAA '04) on May 27th 2017. The ceremony was celebrated by Fr. Vernon Boyd at St. Joachim Parish in Chateaugay.

'06 Giovanni Di Gregorio married MJ El-Kassouf on September 2, 2017. Twelve Loyola grads were in attendance, namely Vito Italia '06, Andrew Dulgar '06, Eric Mastrocola '06, Shayne Moriello '06, Emmanuel Priniotakis '06, Christopher Lomanno '06, Andrea Barone '06, Steven Greco '06, Matthew Racanelli '16, Anthony Racanelli '12, and Nick Gervasi '06.

'06 Michael Khoury was sworn in to the bar of Quebec on August 23, 2017 and now practices Criminal Law.

'07 Davide Cannucci is pictured here with Ryan Lincoln '05, two members of Team Petkov, the training team lead by Loyola's own weight trainer extraordinaire Dobromir Petkov. Both placed second in their categories in a recent competition in Kingston, Ontario.

'08 Ryan Boyd won the 2017 Club Championship at the Royal Montreal Golf Club on September

4, 2017. RMGC is the oldest golf club in North America, founded in 1873. The club champion wins the Dennistoun Medal, which has been awarded annually since 1880.

'09 Daniel Cinelli married Kathleen Ross (QAA '09) on July 29, 2017 at Chapiteau Le Vignoble, in St. Mathieu de Beloeil. Daniel's ushers were Dylan McCarthy '09, Chris Foster '09, Mark Weissfelner '09, and best man, Brendan Cinelli '11.

Alumni Career Mentoring

Aspiring lawyer, engineer or teacher? Future filmmaker? Emerging executive? Mid-career microbrewer? Whether exploring options, starting out a career, or experienced but seeking to change paths, the perspectives of a trusted mentor can be invaluable. The LHSAA is pleased to announce the Loyola Alumni Career Mentoring Program, which aims to provide opportunities for younger (or not so young) alumni to gain insights and advice about their field of interest, from other Loyola alums. In turn, mentors can give back to the Loyola family as true "men for others".

Stay tuned for the official launch of the program and website in early 2018.

Call for Nominations: Hall of Merit

The Hall of Merit honours outstanding alumni and associates who contribute significantly to society in the spirit of service for others. The next induction ceremony will take place on April 6, 2018.

The deadline for submitting nominations is January 15, 2018. For more information on the process, please visit loyola.ca.
