ON THE COVER Julian, Madison, Domenico and Az'zahra, all students of the Class of '28 in the new school uniform collection. They sit on a bench crafted by Secondary 5 students as part of the Industrial Arts class, led by Mr. Elie '97. Mr. Hannan is spearheading a pilot project to create an outdoor learning space, which will incorporate this bench, with the goal to enhance the students' lives through the benefits of outdoor learning.

Message from the President

Message de la présidente

At Loyola High School, we embrace the guiding principle of Magis, the drive to imagine even greater possibilities, which propels us to enrich the educational experience we provide. As we opened our doors for the 2023 - 2024 school year, Loyola marked a significant step forward in our storied history by welcoming our first co-educational cohort. Our cohort of Secondary 1 students is much more than a milestone. They are a testament to Loyola's enduring commitment to serving the Montreal community.

The resounding unity and enthusiasm brought by all of our students, faculty and staff reaffirms our knowledge that Loyola graduates, soon to include young men and women, will be the future leaders the world needs. With 195 students across 7 homerooms, the Class of 2028 represents the largest class at Loyola in more than a decade, ushering in a new era of hope and growth for Loyola. Simultaneously, we are nearing completion of our gymnasium renovation project. Originally completed in 1978 and the cornerstone of our current campus, the Loyola gymnasium has been at the heart of activity and togetherness for generations of Loyola students.

This renovation was led by a Loyola graduate, deeply connected to our school, and supported by a team of fellow alumni. Their commitment embodies the spirit of the Loyola community, where our past is intricately woven into our present and, consequently, our future. The project has served as a reminder that anything is possible when the Loyola community comes together with a common purpose.

Loyola continues to be a nurturing environment, forming compassionate, conscientious, and competent individuals, and our commitment to fostering these qualities in our students for generations to come remains unwavering. We look to the future with boundless optimism, filled with promise and even greater possibilities for our students as the legacy of Loyola continues to unfold and evolve.

À l'école secondaire Loyola, nous adoptons le principe directeur du « magis », c'est-à-dire la volonté de voir encore plus grand, ce qui nous pousse à enrichir l'expérience éducative que nous offrons. Au début de l'année scolaire 2023 - 2024, Loyola a marqué une étape importante dans son histoire en accueillant sa première cohorte mixte. Cette cohorte d'élèves de 1re secondaire constitue bien plus qu'un fait marquant. Elle témoigne de l'engagement durable de Loyola de desservir la communauté montréalaise.

L'unité et l'enthousiasme retentissants dont font preuve tous nos élèves et nos membres du corps enseignant et du personnel renforcent notre certitude que les diplômés de Loyola, qui comprendront bientôt des jeunes hommes et des jeunes femmes, seront les futurs dirigeants dont le monde a besoin. Avec 195 élèves répartis dans sept classes, la cohorte de 2028 est la plus importante à Loyola depuis plus d'une décennie, ouvrant une nouvelle ère d'espoir et de croissance pour l'école. Simultanément, nous avons presque achevé notre projet de rénovation du gymnase. Initialement achevé en 1978 et pilier fondamental de notre campus actuel, le gymnase de Loyola a été au cœur des activités unificatrices de générations d'élèves de Loyola. Cette rénovation a été menée par un diplômé de Loyola, profondément lié à notre école, et soutenue par une équipe d'anciens élèves. Leur engagement incarne l'esprit de la communauté de Loyola, où notre passé est intimement lié à notre présent et, par conséquent, à notre avenir. Ce projet nous rappelle que tout est possible lorsque la communauté de Loyola se rassemble autour d'un but commun.

Loyola reste un environnement propice à la formation d'individus compatissants, consciencieux et compétents, et son engagement à développer ces qualités chez ses élèves pour les générations à venir reste inébranlable. Nous envisageons l'avenir avec un optimisme sans bornes, rempli de promesses et même de plus grandes possibilités pour nos élèves, alors que l'héritage de Loyola continue de se dessiner et d'évoluer.

Call for Nominations

The Loyola Hall of Merit was established in 1984 to honour outstanding Loyola High School graduates and associates who have made substantial contributions to society in the spirit of “service for others.” The Loyola Hall of Merit proudly showcases men and women for others as examples for our current and future students. Their remarkable acts serve as beacons of virtue, reflecting our Jesuit values.

The Hall of Merit Committee warmly invites nominations of those who best exemplify the spirit of service. Whether these nominees’ contributions are widely recognized or are more quietly applauded, but no less impactful, they are selected based on their extraordinary dedication to serving others.

Process for the Submission of Nominations

- The nominator should explain how the nominee meets the criteria for consideration to the Hall of Merit, highlighting the nominee’s substantial contributions to society in the spirit of ‘service for others’.
- The nominator should provide examples of how the nominee embodies the “5 Characteristics of the Loyola Grad at Grad” of being open to growth, spiritual, intellectually competent, loving, and committed to doing justice.
- The nominator is responsible for contacting three individuals willing to submit letters in support of the nomination.
- The nomination letter and the three letters of support should not exceed two pages in length and should adhere to the criteria mentioned above.

The deadline for submitting nominations for candidates along with three letters of support is Thursday, January 25, 2024.

Kindly submit your nominations and letters of support to HallofMerit@loyola.ca.

For additional information or inquiries, please contact Dr. Don Taddeo '63 at HallofMerit@loyola.ca or by phone at 514-486-1101, ext. 281.

50 years since Fr. Pedro Arrupe, SJ's seminal address

It was 50 years ago when Fr. Pedro Arrupe, SJ, the then Superior General of the Society of Jesus, delivered his historic speech at the International Congress of Jesuit Alumni of Europe in Valencia, Spain. It was a fitting occasion, as this speech was given on the feast day of St. Ignatius of Loyola.

Fr. Arrupe's famous 1973 discourse, originally titled Men for Others, is now recognized as Persons for Others, to embrace more inclusive language. It has since encapsulated the essence of what alumni of Jesuit schools worldwide aspire to be and has significantly influenced the direction and principles of Jesuit education.

Fr. Arrupe's words continue to challenge and inspire us: "Today our prime educational objective must be to form men and women for others; men and women who will live not for themselves but for God and his Christ." As we commemorate the 50th anniversary, his call for Jesuit education embodies a spirit of solidarity and an education focused on justice, shaping individuals into advocates for and with others.

A Life Devoted to Faith, Justice and Service: Remembering Fr. Pedro Arrupe, SJ (1907-1991)

Fr. Arrupe, SJ was born in the Basque region of Spain in 1907. After some years of medical training, Fr. Arrupe entered the Jesuits in 1927. After being ordained, Fr. Arrupe was sent to Japan in 1938. His early years as a missionary in Japan exposed him to the harsh realities of the world, culminating in his survival of the Hiroshima atomic bombing. This profound experience fueled Fr. Arrupe's lifelong commitment to service. He was a Jesuit priest who left an enduring legacy. He was elected in 1965 as the 28th Superior General of the Society of Jesus and held the position until 1983. Fr. Arrupe steered the Jesuit order through a transformative era. Emphasizing a men and women for others approach, he urged Jesuits to actively engage in societal issues. He played a crucial role in shaping the Jesuit response to global challenges, advocating for the marginalized. His life reflects a remarkable integration of faith and justice, leaving an indelible mark on the Jesuit order's identity and mission.

Erik Sorensen, SJ, Returns to Loyola for First Mass

On May 14, 2022, Cardinal Michael Czerny '63, SJ ordained Fr. Erik Sorensen, SJ, at the Notre-Dame-de-Bon-Secours Chapel in Montreal.

On Sunday, August 6, 2023, Erik Sorensen was warmly welcomed back by the Loyola community, where he had recently spent two years teaching. His first Mass took place in the Bishops' Atrium at Loyola, followed by a celebration and reception with the Jesuit community on West Broadway.

Reaching for the Stars

a lifelong learner

Loyola High School's efforts to care for the whole person (cura personalis) often bear fruit only years after our students graduate from the school. This particular mission of Jesuit education is for students to develop many interests and skills and to see themselves as people with diverse interests and passions. The school's hope is that graduates will "reach for the stars" - a notion alumnus Dr. Peter H.U. Lee '89 took to heart.

Born in Germany to a Korean family, Dr. Lee MD '05 'PhD '15, grew up in Montreal's Snowdon neighbourhood. While attending Loyola High School was a natural choice due to his Catholic upbringing, it also played a pivotal role in providing him with a solid foundation for building his stellar career.

Dr. Lee's passion for space exploration led him to apply to two prestigious American preparatory schools, Phillips Exeter Academy and Phillips Academy (Andover), both of which admitted him. Remarkably, in the same year, three other Loyola High School students were also accepted to Andover. Choosing Andover, alongside two fellow Loyola students, laid the groundwork for remarkable growth opportunities.

Dr. Lee's academic journey continued with his acceptance into the distinctive Program in Liberal Medical Education (PLME) at Brown University in Rhode Island, which merged an undergraduate education with guaranteed admission into its medical school. He went on to earn a bachelor's degree in Neuroscience, a medical degree, and a doctorate in Pathobiology at Brown.

Before embarking on his medical studies, he spent a transformative year in France, where he earned a Master's degree in Space Studies from the International Space University. Upon his return to Brown, he achieved the rare honor of having an experiment selected for John Glenn's space shuttle mission in 1998 studying the effects of spaceflight on genetically modified tissue-engineered skeletal muscle.

Dr. Lee's commitment to being a lifelong learner has never waned. Fueled by his early fascination with surgery during medical school, Dr. Lee embarked on an extensive educational journey. He pursued a Master of Public Health at Harvard University and furthered his learning through general surgery training at Tufts University, a cardiothoracic surgery fellowship at the University of California Los Angeles (UCLA), and a year at Stanford University focusing on heart and lung transplantation.

At the age of 41, Dr. Lee began his first job at The Ohio State University (OSU), where he performed heart and lung transplants while simultaneously managing his own lab, funded by The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) and the National Institutes of Health (NIH). In addition to research and surgery, Lee also served many national leadership roles, including on the Executive Council of the Aerospace Medical Association and the Governing Board of the American Society for Gravitational and Space Research. His contributions extended to conducting four experiments that were sent to the International Space Station. Dr. Lee also served as the medical officer for a one-month Mars simulation mission on Devon Island in the Canadian arctic and he was a finalist for the Canadian astronaut program in 2016.

His skill set goes beyond the realms of medicine and aerospace research. In 2014 he joined the U.S. Air National Guard where he is a Lieutenant Colonel and serves as a general surgeon as part of a Ground Surgical Team and a flight surgeon. Dr. Lee is also an Aviation Medical Examiner and special consultant for the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA).

Dr. Lee embodies Loyola's core principle of cura personalis through his lifelong commitment to learning and exploration. Over two decades ago, he obtained a 7th degree grandmaster rank in Taekwondo, a private pilot's license, and added a Master SCUBA diver certification to his ever-growing list of accomplishments. For Dr. Lee, acquiring new skills has always been

“a way to learn more about yourself and allows you to try to push your boundaries”. He emphasizes the importance of “continuous medical education, acknowledging that staying updated with current knowledge and techniques is essential for providing the best care to patients.”

Reflecting on his career, Dr. Lee deeply embraced Loyola’s motto of forming “men and women for others”. As an educator and mentor, he leveraged the values instilled at Loyola to better serve others and contribute to their well-being. He found fulfillment in guiding students towards achieving their dreams and took pride in their achievements, often stating, “It’s a proud moment when they do even better than you.” This materialized when one of his mentees, Jessica Meir, paid tribute to his mentorship when she became a NASA astronaut.

Dr. Lee has received numerous awards, but the one that holds the most significance for him is the Early Achievement Award presented by the Brown Medical School Alumni Association. This accolade acknowledges exceptional contributions made by a medical alumnus during the early stages of their career. He is also a Knight in two prestigious royal orders, being a Grand Cross Knight in the Royal Equestrian and Military Order of Saint Michael of the Wing, a Portuguese Roman Catholic dynastic order, and a Knight Commander in the Order of Prince Danilo I.

As Dr. Lee stands at the forefront of medical advancements and aerospace exploration, he reminds us that the pursuit of knowledge knows no bounds. He has always followed his heart in exploring his diverse interests, no matter how far-reaching they may seem, and this has helped shape him as a prominent leader in the fields of medicine, space and aviation. He hopes to venture into space someday – a feat that is well within his reach.

On Monday, October 2, 2023, Loyola High School had the pleasure of hosting Brian Ewenson '86, who delivered a stellar presentation to our Secondary 1 students. He shared insights into his role in training astronauts for both the Canadian Space Agency and NASA. Our students gained valuable knowledge about the future of the International Space Station and the upcoming lunar mission.

Brian Ewenson is an Aerospace Educator, Consultant and Professional Speaker, on Aviation and Aerospace. Brian has worked for the Canadian Space Agency, Lockheed Martin’s Space Day and Challenger Learning Centers. He has designed, developed and flown student and corporate experiments on the Space Shuttle and International Space Station and subsequently trained astronauts to do his work in space.

Brian has attended and/or presented at 27 of the 28 ISSEC and SEEC conferences at Space Center Houston and was the recipient of the 2010 Cherri Brinley Aerospace Educator of the Year Award.

CarbiCrete

Paving the way in the fight against climate change

Chris Stern '88 and Yuri Mytko '93 stand at the forefront of the cleantech movement, spearheading innovative solutions with a resolute commitment to forging a more sustainable world.

In a world grappling with environmental challenges, CarbiCrete, a Quebec-based sustainable company, has become a prominent figure in the sustainability arena. Their pioneering approach to mitigating carbon emissions within the concrete industry has earned them widespread recognition.

The Concrete Carbon Conundrum

Concrete, the planet's second most consumed substance following water, presents a pressing environmental dilemma. Its production hinges heavily on cement, a major contributor to the alarming 8% of global greenhouse gas emissions. CarbiCrete, however, is leading the charge with an ingenious technological solution by replacing cement in the concrete mix with steel slag, a by-product of the steel-making process. This groundbreaking substitution effectively eliminates the emissions tied to cement production, making their process carbon neutral. Beyond this, CarbiCrete employs waste carbon dioxide for curing products like construction blocks. This transformative step converts the entire process into a carbon-negative endeavour by permanently removing CO₂ from the atmosphere, thus contributing to a more sustainable planet.

Overcoming Entrepreneurial Hurdles

Chris and Yuri (pictured below) acknowledge the arduous journey of building a business from the ground up. They had to surmount an initial hurdle in educating the concrete industry about the profound environmental impact of cement. Additionally, managing the expectations of diverse stakeholders, including employees, investors, customers, and board members, is no small feat. Transparency, consistent communication, and an unwavering commitment to their objectives have proven to be the pillars of their success.

Chris Stern '88

Chris studied mechanical engineering at McGill University. He then embarked on a career in sales and business development, notably in pharmaceutical packaging equipment and automotive machining. He co-founded Pure Energies, which empowered homeowners to adopt solar energy and home conservation products, eventually selling it to NRG Energy in 2014. His path shifted when he met Mehrdad Mahoutian, who had pioneered a process for manufacturing low carbon concrete using waste streams. This encounter led Chris to venture back into the startup world, where he assumed the role of CEO and co-founder at CarbiCrete, driven by a mission to bring this technology to market.

Alumni Connections

One of the investors in CarbiCrete is MacKinnon Bennett & Co. (MKB), a firm led by Ken MacKinnon '75.

Loyola: The Bedrock of Entrepreneurship

Their formative years at Loyola have left an indelible mark on Yuri and Chris. The enduring relationships and the supportive and nurturing rapport between students and teachers, a unique hallmark of the Loyola experience, have profoundly influenced their journeys. "My closest friends are those that I made at Loyola, my business partner is a Loyola grad, and my wife went to a Loyola sister-school" shares Yuri. For Chris, some of his most cherished memories are linked to the football field, and his history teacher, Mr. John Javornik who jokingly said "Stern, you come from a long line of smart people...what happened?"

Advice for Aspiring Entrepreneurs

Chris emphasizes the importance of networking and learning from seasoned founders. Actively participating in pitching contests and seeking guidance from those who have walked the entrepreneurial path are invaluable steps in the journey towards building a successful enterprise.

Paving the Way for a Greener Tomorrow

CarbiCrete's technology tackles greenhouse gas emissions head-on, offering a path to eliminate the need for cement in concrete. Their innovation solves three critical challenges: reducing waste, curbing emissions, and removing CO2. This positions CarbiCrete as a force in the ongoing battle to decarbonize demanding industries such as steel and concrete.

The Foundation of their Passions

Chris finds joy in spending time with his children, and his passion is grounded in the pursuit of solving the climate crisis through technology, securing a brighter future for the next generation. Yuri's passion is rooted in his love for music, family, and sports — all of which he cultivated during his time at Loyola.

Champions of Men and Women for Others

The principle of men and women for others resonates with Yuri and Chris. It underscores the importance of recognizing one's role within a broader community, understanding the impact of one's actions on that community, and acknowledging the moral responsibility to act for the greater good. Through their impactful work at CarbiCrete, Yuri and Chris embody the values instilled in them at Loyola, contributing to a better and more sustainable future for all.

Fostering Business Acumen with the Student Stock Exchange

For their final project in Financial Education, our Secondary 5 students created a total of nineteen companies and successfully sold their wares during the two selling days at the end of April.

They built their own kiosks, developed their business plans, designed their logos, marketed their products, and even sold shares. With the generous support of the Loyola community, the students raised over $20,000 for various charities. The title of Loyola's Entrepreneur of the Year for the 2023 SSX was awarded to Twisted Taters who selected Plast Montreal Пласт Монреаль, the Ukrainian youth organisation of Quebec as their beneficiary charity.

This initiative exemplifies the value-added aspect of a Loyola education - a practical, hands-on learning experience that involves the entire school and benefits the broader community.

Yuri Mytko '93

Yuri studied liberal arts at Dawson and philosophy at McGill University. He explored law school but soon realized it was not his true calling. After gaining valuable experience in the telecommunications industry in New York and London, he returned to academia. He pursued an MBA with a focus in Marketing, Communications and Media Management at Fordham University.

Upon his return to Montreal, he held roles as a fundraiser at Loyola High School and as a marketing and communications professional across diverse sectors including philanthropy, higher education, healthcare, and venture capital. Fascinated by CarbiCrete's technology, Yuri joined forces with Chris, where he now serves as Chief Marketing Officer.

Dear Loyola Community,

It is my pleasure to share the incredible success story of our 2022-23 school year, a chapter marked by triumph and unity. Our inaugural Annual Giving Day exceeded all expectations, thanks to your unwavering support. With a focus on encouraging first-time donors, we set ambitious goals and achieved remarkable results—909 unique donors, including 350 first-time contributors. Your generosity knows no bounds, and your belief in our mission fuels our aspirations.

This collective effort played a pivotal role in shaping our initiatives: the Teachers' Excellence Fund and the Ignatian Formation Fund, to name two. These funds are not just financial contributions; they are investments in the future of Loyola. They enhance our school's infrastructure, provide invaluable resources, enrich activities, and ensure quality education for all students. Your contributions don't just support; they transform lives.

Looking forward, I am delighted to announce the return of our annual Giving Day on April 16, 2024. This event is not just a fundraiser; it's a celebration of our shared commitment to making a difference. Together, we have the power to create lasting change, shaping the future of Loyola and its students. Let's harness the spirit of #TogetherForOthers and continue our work together.

On behalf of the development team, I extend my heartfelt gratitude to our incredible alumni, devoted parents, dedicated students, passionate faculty and staff, and friends of the school. Your support strengthens the foundation of Loyola, allowing us to educate the "whole person" and inspire generations to come.

Thank you and warm regards,

Scott Corbett

SUPPORT FROM THE MOTHER'S GUILD & LOYOLA PARENTS' ASSOCIATION (LPA)

With immense gratitude for their generous commitment, Loyola's inaugural Giving Day became a resounding success, thanks to the invaluable support of the Loyola Mother's Guild and Loyola Parents' Association. Their establishment of challenge funds played a pivotal role in rallying support for essential initiatives such as the Teachers' Excellence Fund, Ignatian Formation Fund, and the Loyola Bursary Fund.

23rd ANNUAL LOYOLA HIGH SCHOOL GOLF TOURNAMENT

On October 2, 2022, the Loyola High School Foundation hosted the 23rd Annual Golf Tournament. Thanks to the participants and sponsors, the tournament raised $216,790 for Loyola's Bursary Fund.

1st ANNUAL GIVING DAY

909 unique donors (parents, alumni, faculty and staff) raised $253,784 in the first-ever 24-hour fundraising event hosted by Loyola High School, smashing our goals of exceeding 750 unique donors.

HOCKEY RAFFLE

Every year, Loyola holds a raffle for season tickets to the Montreal Canadiens. The hockey raffle was held on Thursday, October 6, 2022. For the 2022-23 season, $82,220 was raised for bursaries! Tickets sold: 4111.

Lisa Dias Memorial Fund

On April 18, 2023, during our first Giving Day, two large anonymous donations were made to the bursary fund in honour of Lisa Dias. For a fund to be endowed at Loyola High School, and exist in perpetuity, it must exceed $100,000. In 2022-23, $91,294 was raised from 125 donors. Please consider contributing and helping to ensure the Lisa Dias Memorial Fund reaches its goal. Your money will be invested and generate revenue that will support students in perpetuity and keep Lisa's memory alive for generations to come.

Watch a video tribute to Lisa and make a gift to help us reach our $100k goal.

WELCOMES & FAREWELLS

MARIA CARNEIRO
Senior Event & Community Engagement Officer

After 23 years, Maria Carneiro began her well-deserved retirement in June 2023. For many years, Maria served as the backbone and heartbeat of the Development office. A former Loyola parent and both grad and staff member of Sacred Heart School of Montreal, her expertise and knowledge of the English-speaking community was fundamental in her role at Loyola.

The impact of her work will stand the test of time as will the memory of her kind smile. Happy retirement Maria!

KRISTYNA SPOONER
Advancement Officer

Kristyna is a graduate of Queen of Angels Academy and then Concordia University. She began her career in marketing with Labatt Breweries of Canada. Most recently, she spent a year in Australia where she filled the role of Engagement Officer and Social Media Manager for the prestigious Loreto Mandeville Hall in Melbourne.

As our Advancement Officer, she will play a crucial role in strengthening our connections with alumni, parents, donors, and friends of the school.

CHIARA FOLINI
Director, Marketing & Communications

Chiara is a bilingual marketing specialist with a Communications degree from Concordia University. In her most recent role as a social media and regional marketing manager at Cineplex, she worked in both the Toronto and Montreal offices. A graduate of the Sacred Heart School of Montreal, she was involved in Loyola events such as Winter Carnival and theatrical productions as a student. As Loyola's new Director of Marketing and Communications, she is thrilled to return to a community that holds a special place in her heart.

Principal's Corner

I'm fairly sure that, from the end of August until the end of June, Loyola High School never sleeps. The school is in a constant state of positive and productive activity. However, as we embrace the 2023-2024 school year, it is vital that we take into account three 'r' words: reflection and reacquaintance, in the greater hope of renewal.

British writer Thomas Carlyle wrote the following: "To each is given a certain Talent, a certain Outward Environment of Fortune; to each, by wisest combination of these two, a certain maximum of Capability." This fine quotation captures the essence of the formation of the whole person we instill in our students at Loyola.

Carlyle first addresses the inherent possibility contained within each individual. He is suggesting that every person is given particular abilities. The bold ultimatum of any new school year is to identify, reflect upon, and embrace these strengths.

The second part of the quotation about the "Outward Environment of Fortune" looks external, to an individual's surroundings and the opportunity afforded, with able assistance, to become reacquainted with a school that offers the perfect conditions, should one take advantage of all its amenities, to achieve success.

Finally, the passage ends by suggesting it is through a potent mix of the internal and external, talent and environment, that our students can reach their "maximum of Capability." This requires consistent renewal and meeting the challenge of the Jesuit term magis, which means not more, as in quantity, but better, as in quality.

Amidst the flurry of activity of another academic year, where we will have to wait until settling into summer before catching our breath, I have full faith that our reflecting, reacquainting and renewing will truly turn magis into magic.

For the second year, Loyola opened its doors to ▲ the next generation of men and women for others.

Loyola's Open House

On Saturday, September 16, 2023, Loyola's Open House drew in more than 500 families. Grade 5 and Grade 6 students and their families had the opportunity to meet with our dedicated faculty, staff, students, and to explore the diverse array of extracurricular activities that epitomize a Loyola education. At the Open House, Loyola High School's core mission took center stage, highlighting our commitment to educating the whole person, empowering each student to pursue their interests and passions.

Students Travel the World

In October, our students had the pleasure of hosting exchange students from the Ensemble scolaire Saint-Joseph de Tivoli, a Jesuit school in Bordeaux, France. During their stay, the Tivoli students attended classes and events at Loyola, discovered St. Joseph's Oratory, indulged in the iconic smoked meat sandwiches at Schwartz's and visited Mont-Tremblant, among other places. They also had the unique opportunity to go to Kahnawake, where they visited the sanctuary of Saint Kateri and gained insights into indigenous spirituality from a respected Elder. Loyola students eagerly anticipate their visit to Bordeaux in February 2024. À bientôt!

Meanwhile, in early Fall, Secondary 4 students had an enriching experience during their visit to Stratford, Ontario. They explored the charming town of Stratford and enjoyed captivating performances, including "Rent" at the Festival Theatre, "Grand Magic" at the Tom Patterson Theatre, and "Spamalot" at the Avon Theatre.

In October, four senior students travelled to Washington, D.C. over the weekend to attend the annual Ignatian Family Teach-In for Justice that gathers 2000 students from Jesuit schools across North America. At the conference, students had the opportunity to network, learn and reflect on issues including migration policies, environmental justice and racism.

Loyola Sprouts

Plan(e)t Care

In alignment with Society of Jesus' Universal Apostolic Preference "Caring for our Common Home", Ms. Cheri Adams (English & Theatre Arts Teacher, Student Life Coordinator) introduced a vegetable and fruit plant sale to the Loyola community at the end of the 2022-23 school year.

The pots were stocked and cared for by Ms. Adams for months before being sold to the Loyola community as viable plants to be brought home, nurtured and help sprout home gardening initiatives.

We are looking forward to seeing this initiative flourish in the coming year as the school, its faculty and students continue to explore new ways to care for our common home.

The Cooking Program Continues

On October 19, the M13 D1 hockey team enjoyed a delightful cooking session in the school kitchen, thanks to the culinary program initiated by renowned Montreal chef and restaurateur, Fred Morin P '26 & P '28. Our students not only discovered the art of preparing and savouring meals together, but it also sparked conversations about healthy eating - a true "food for thought" experience. It even caught the attention of CTV News.

On the segment, Chef Morin talks about the importance of overcoming mistakes both in the kitchen and on the ice: "Life goes on."

Truth & Reconciliation

Awareness and impact

Loyola hosted an annual school-wide event to honour National Truth and Reconciliation Day and Orange Shirt Day, observed every September 30. This year, we came together a day early, on Friday, September 29, donning orange shirts to show our solidarity and dedication to meaningful conversations about Indigenous history, the present, and the future. The orange shirt was designed by Thahnhahténhtha Gilbert '23 and made by Karahkwa Designs. All proceeds from the shirts went towards supporting the Kahnawake Youth Center.

Across levels and as part of the curriculum, students also studied stories of hurtful truths from the past, cultural beauty and Indigenous resilience and ingenuity.

The return of Fr. Altília, SJ

Fr. Len Altília, SJ has returned as Chaplain following the passing of Fr. Brennan, SJ. When asked about his perspective on his position at Loyola, Fr. Altília highlighted the importance of a Jesuit education: "Inside every one of our students is a spark of the divine which we must fan into flame so that they may set the world on fire with their love and their joy."

Fr. Altília had previously served as teacher, principal and president of Loyola High School. He later became president of St. Paul's High School, a Jesuit school in Winnipeg, Manitoba. In November, Fr. Altília, SJ was presented the prestigious Order of St. Jean de Brébeuf Award for his unwavering dedication and commitment.

Agents of Change

A Summer Initiative by Students

From June 24 to July 8, the Bailey family, including Alexandre '25 and Nathan '27, embarked on a transformative journey to Cartago, Costa Rica, with a mission to create a positive global impact. Their shared desire to make a difference led them to discover Global Vision International (GVI).

Their collaborative efforts with the Abraham Project, a Christian initiative, involved teaching English in underserved areas, engaging in various activities like taekwondo, and contributing to community gardening, while promoting sustainability and self-sufficiency. Their experiences reached beyond borders and cultures, aspiring to exemplify the principles of "Showing the way to God" and spreading His love. This meaningful collaboration with GVI has reinforced their commitment to service and global citizenship, resonating with Loyola's mission.

Parents' Dance

The annual tradition continued this year as the Loyola Parents' Association (LPA) organized a dance.

A big thank you to parents, alumni and supporters who made the 2023 edition of the LPA parent dinner and dance a smashing success! Special thanks to BeaverTails and Les Délices Lafrenai for dessert, Le Classique for excellent food and service, Soul Station for their incredible performance, the student helpers and dedicated Loyola Parent Association members, led by Dance Chair Leslie Andradi, who made it all happen.

Meet Louis Félix Valiquette

Campus Minister

The Loyola Family is happy to welcome Louis Félix Valiquette as the school's new full time Campus Minister in 2023-2024. Mr. Valiquette's boundless energy and enthusiasm will no doubt inspire the students he is shepherding in individual grade level spiritual formation teams. In addition, he will be ably coordinating a number of important dossiers, including Retreats and Kairos, Experience Week and the Christian Service Program (CSP).

What is your background and experience?

I'm originally from Montérégie, and I've spent my entire educational journey within the public school system. I took an international program in high school before venturing out to settle in Lac-Saint-Jean for three years. Later, I continued my studies at the University of Sherbrooke, initially focusing on environmental studies and then transitioning to theology. My career path led me to work with various community organizations, particularly those involved in immigrant integration and supporting marginalized populations. I also had the privilege of managing the youth mission of the Saint-Jean-Longueuil Diocese and working with the Phare de Longueuil organization. One of the highlights was coordinating World Youth Day with a delegation in Portugal.

How would you define Campus Ministry to today's youth?

To help young people grasp what Campus Ministry is all about, I invite them to think of it as "Campus Caring" or, more broadly, "Caring for the Campus". From my perspective, the primary mission of Campus Ministry is to care for the school community, including students, teachers, parents and others. It's a welcoming space, always centered on Christ's unconditional love, offered to all to help them develop their abilities, deepen their faith, experience new horizons and come together as a community.

What are the goals of the Christian Service Program (CSP) for this year?

While Campus Ministry focuses on caring for the Loyola community, the Christian Service Program provides students with opportunities to think beyond their immediate surroundings and engage in acts of evangelical justice. Following Jesus' example, they extend their service to people in need. Through this program, we aim to encourage students to open their hearts and minds to the pressing social issues that persist in our society. The objective is not merely to raise awareness about these challenges but also to prepare our students to become effective agents of change in their communities.

What inspired you to take on your current role at Loyola?

I believe it was a calling from God that led me to this role. Following a series of life decisions, I went to Villa Saint-Martin on a whim, contemplating my professional future. I met many young men at the retirement home, sharing their profound stories of faith. It was there that I learned of the existence of a Jesuit, Catholic school in Montreal. In a conversation with Fr. Altilia, SJ, I discovered that a campus ministry position was available, and the rest, as they say, is history.

What are your hopes for the future of the CSP program?

This year, as our entire Campus Ministry team is new, our focus is on effective continuity with the projects and initiatives of our predecessors. We aim to ensure that the CSP and other Campus Ministry activities align with the Universal Apostolic Preferences (UAPs) and empower students to develop their abilities to become men and women for others. Our hope is to build on the foundation laid by previous programs, adapting them to better reflect these preferences and provide a platform for students to grow and serve their communities.

Game-Changing: 1st Co-ed Athletics Season

Coaches Ms. Mongeon and Mr. Lynam proudly stand with the first Loyola Bantam Girls' soccer team.

The Juvenile Boys' football team had an impressive 42-0 victory in the last regular season game.

The return of MVP QB Daniel '24 and the outstanding play of the defense resulted in a championship win for the Juvenile Boys' flag football team.

The golf team swung into victory in the GMAA Championship, with Justin '25 securing first place, and Oscar '25 earning third spot.

The first Bantam Girls' volleyball team excelled, culminating in a fantastic victory against FACE in the final tournament of the season.

Co-ed cross-country runners sprinted to victory on Mont-Royal, with Matthew '24 from the Juvenile team claiming first place.

The first Bantam Boys' flag football team finished the regular season undefeated, securing a triumphant 21-14 victory in the GMAA championship.

Special mention to our volunteer alumni coaches: David Mather '16, Michael Apa '03, Jonathan Mancini '09, Sam Anastasopoulos '20, Owen Lawton '17, Albert Hallal '15, Chris Devito '12, Zackary Gilmore '16 and Marco Ottoni '87.

The Juvenile Boys' soccer team finished first in their division and clinched the GMAA championship.

The Bantam Boys' D3 soccer team triumphed with a championship victory over Collège St-Jean-Vianney.

24th ANNUAL LOYOLA HIGH SCHOOL GOLF TOURNAMENT BURSARY DRIVE

A special thanks to all our generous sponsors, dedicated committee members, participants, volunteers and all of whom contributed to making Loyola's Annual Golf Tournament a hole-in-one success. All proceeds raised from the tournament will support Loyola's Bursary Fund.

ALUMNI NEWS OF INTEREST

In 2023, Loyola High School and the Loyola High School Alumni Association (LHSAA) launched an extensive class representatives program that aims to find at least one (1) representative per class year who can act as a liaison between the school and classmates for special events, news, etc. For more information about the program, please reach out to Kristyna Spooner (Advancement Officer, LHS) or Pino Di Ioia '86 (Class Representatives Coordinator, LHSAA) at alumni@loyola.ca.

'61 John Corbett wanted to share that news of his and Brian Corbett '64's mother turned 100 on July 16 of this year. Anne McKee (formerly Corbett) moved from Montreal to Key West, Florida in 1972. Here, she has carved a significant niche and is known as their most prominent patron of the Arts.

Richard Monette, beloved gifted actor & lauded 14-year Director Stratford Festival, was recognized with a street named after him in his honour near the Festival Theatre.

'72 Michael Doherty ▲ shared: "It's been just over 50 years since I graduated and I continue to benefit from my education at Loyola: I freelance at a job I love and, in between editing gigs, I buy plane tickets and explore the world. I'm in 54 countries and counting. Maybe it was Fr. Moriarty who instilled that desire in me; he cornered me one day and pushed me to be the best I could be. He also said I should become a lawyer, though I bypassed that recommendation. I'm currently on the island of Patmos in Greece just looking around."

The Class of '63 gathered for their 60th reunion from September 1-3, 2023.

On the Friday evening, Marcelle DeFreitas delivered a hopeful address about Loyola's present and future to the Class of '63, many of whom were accompanied by their spouses and partners. Saturday began with a Mass celebrated by Cardinal Michael Czerny, SJ '63 followed by a dinner and a private concert by Bowser and Blue generously hosted by Rick '63 and Carolyn Renaud in St-Sauveur. Sunday marked the farewell brunch where the Cardinal engaged in a Q&A session with his fellow classmates in person and online from around the world. Dr. Don Taddeo '63 beautifully encapsulates the essence of the weekend: "Gratitude, for all we were given, for all we have, for our indelible Loyola High School experience."

'73 Norman Hébert C.M. has just been announced as the new Chair for the Board of Directors for the Montreal Children's Hospital Foundation. Mr. Hébert, Executive Chair of Groupe Park Avenue, is joining the foundation at a crucial time as they enter the second half of their major 200-million-dollar campaign.

James (Jim) Pearson 1932–2023

Mr. James (Jim) Pearson '49 began his teaching career at Loyola in 1956, becoming an integral part of the Math Department. In 1980, alongside colleague Ed Meagher, he initiated the Loyola High School Foundation. By 1990, both Jim and his wife Joan were inducted into the Loyola Hall of Merit.

Although he retired from teaching in 1996, Mr. Pearson's commitment to the school remained unwavering through his continued dedication to the Foundation. Notably, he holds the distinction of being the longest-serving educator in Loyola's history.

With his profound understanding of Loyola, in 2018, Mr. Pearson authored "Loyola Montreal: Stories From our History." This comprehensive 300-page book provides a unique perspective on the 120-year history of Loyola High School and Loyola College. It stands as the most extensive compilation of narratives from the Montreal Loyola community, serving as a testament to Jim's remarkable 70-year association with the school.

Eulogy for my buddy

Excerpts from eulogy written by Robert (Bob) Shaughnessy '61

I started teaching at Loyola in the fall of 1966. I was assigned to the Math Department where there was a formidable array of mentors including Jim Pearson, or Pearse as he was affectionately referred to. Mathematical concepts can be a tad confusing at times, but Jim had the ability to explain the complicated in a clear and concise manner. He had a love of Math, and he quietly passed it on to the rest of us. A few years later, Pearse and I were conscripted to figure out "scheduling". You get to know someone well when you are trying to put a square plug-in a round hole. Pearse was always calm as could be and would always come up with a "Pearson algorithm" to save the day.

We coached the Bantam hockey team together a few years. One year, the Bantam and Senior team (coached by Jim Ruddy and Ed Meagher) were both playing in the City Finals at Loyola's rink. We won our game and the whole team stayed and watched the Seniors win their game. After the kids had gone, the four of us stayed in the room and went over the season and talked about the kids - I can still remember how excited Jim was talking about the boys. This should not have surprised me for that was his strong point as a teacher. There's the time Pearson's back was bothering him, and he was continually stretching it - it was not unusual for him to lay on the desk for a bit while teaching. Eric Cook and some of his classmates recall this vividly but this style of teaching never bothered them. Indeed, to a man they all said, "We loved the guy - we also realized he was "on our side" as young men, regardless of what we did as students. We sensed a genuine kindness from him, which we gravitated to. We knew we could trust him. In our books, he was a "good guy".

What a gift he had.

He loved to tell jokes and he always pushed up his glasses right before the punch line, followed by that mischievous smile and quiet laugh. At faculty meetings, when debates came close to arguments, he was the voice of reason and thoughtful diplomacy. I always thought of him as the quintessential gentleman, embracing old school manners and dignity. He did it all at Loyola and in the process won the hearts of his peers, the students he taught and the staff he worked with. Jim, may you rest in peace and God bless.

Remembering Padre

Excerpts from Memorial Service speech written by Eric Vani '91

Years ago, I was blessed to share a quiet moment with a wise ol' man – we ruminated over the purpose of life and death. Indeed, a profound and intimidating topic. Ask any graduate or person who knew him well and they will say that his non-judgemental and sincere approach made him the go-to person to speak with about any topic – from the existence of God to the harsh vicissitudes of teenage relationships, to the best football team in NFL history – nothing was off the table with him. He listened attentively, never used platitudes, and always ended discussions with, “I will pray for you.”

Padre wore many hats at Loyola, serving as president, administrator, teacher, chaplain, coach and, most importantly, companion. He dedicated himself to his students and ensured that he journeyed with each of them. He was a master teacher, who was more interested in the development of the whole person – he taught the individual first, then the subject. His lessons were all founded on love – love for his students, love for the topics he shared, and love for life-long learning.

Beyond the hallowed halls of Loyola, Fr. Brennan shared his goodness with the world. He rarely declined requests to officiate weddings or baptisms for former students, regardless of how hectic his schedule was or how treacherous the travel would be to get to his destination – he always presided with an energetic smile and a willingness to serve.

And serve he did – most notably, alongside Saint Mother Teresa, tending to Calcutta's most marginalized community. Fr. Brennan dutifully served men, women and children who suffered from leprosy. In 2011, Padre spent his March Break tending to the needs of citizens in Fukushima, Japan, after giant waves flooded nuclear reactors in the area, forcing over a hundred thousand people to flee from the radiation. Indeed, another reminder of Padre's desire to care for others by giving and not counting the costs.

Thank you for being such an influential part of my life, as well as the lives of countless others. His words – will forever echo in our minds: “Caring and compassion can hurt. [...] But when you demonstrate care and compassion, not only are you doing something special, you're becoming something special.”

Fr. Robert (Rob) Brennan, SJ 1945-2023

It is not hyperbole to state that Fr. Brennan was the peaceful heart of Loyola High School during these last few years of disruptions and uncertainty. With a dutiful elegance, he took on the role of Interim President at the outbreak of the pandemic, his second time as spiritual leader of our community, before returning to his long-time post of school chaplain, a post he has occupied almost constantly since his arrival in 1986.

Many of you have been blessed to know Fr. Brennan as a student, an alumnus, a parent, a colleague and a friend. During any given month, it was unsurprising to find an old student make the pilgrimage to the High School in order to chat with him. Countless are the weddings, baptisms and funerals over which he presided in our community. Countless are the words of wisdom he has imparted in times of joy, sorrow and all moments in between.

Fr. Brennan, SJ, helped us “see God in all things”, and we in turn knew God better by virtue of being in his presence.

In Loving Memory of
